Product Compact 150N

Name Lifejacket

Brand Mullion

Type / number of model Unknown

Batch number Manufactured after December 2011

Product description Inflatable lifejacket - Mullion Compact 150N lifejacket - defective model has yellow insert in the oral inflate valve.

Risk type Drowning

Legal provisions (at EU level) and European standards against which the product was tested and did not comply The risk is associated with models with the yellow insert valve in the oral inflatable tube. The product poses a risk of drowning because the air could leak from the oral tube, or the yellow insert valve could blow out, releasing the buoyancy air in the lifejacket. The product does not comply with the Personal Protective Equipment Directive (PPE) and the European standard EN ISO 12402.

The fixing bolt of the steering wheel may initially have been insufficiently tightened. The tightening torque of the fixing bolt may deteriorate over time as the steering wheel boss material is susceptible to temperature changes that may cause a loss of axial tension, resulting in excessive play in the steering wheel. If the vehicle continues to be driven in this condition over a long period of time, then the steering joint may become damaged eventually leading to steering wheel free rotation.
